

Open Facebook, you will see something like this.

Look here on left side

Click on "Events"

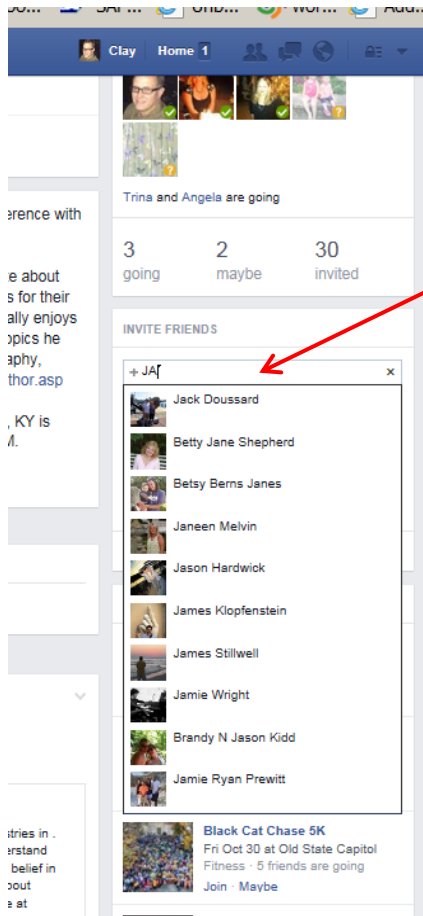

Scroll down until you see “Video Conference with Lenny Esposito” and then click on it

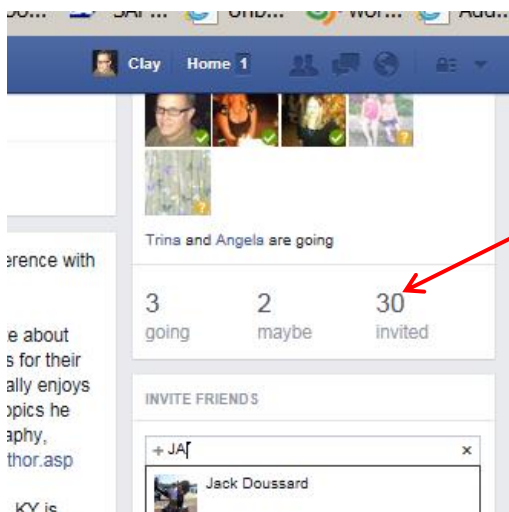

You should see something like this

Type a few letters of someone you know who could have potential interest in this event in this space

After you start typing the full name or select the person by clicking on their name with your cursor, Facebook will then automatically invite them to the event

The number of invitations will increase as you invite more people